THURLOW WEED.

Comments of "Gath" and Carl Schurz on the Dead Journalist.

He Was the Great Original Political Boss.

New York, Nov. 24.—"Gath" says: Thurlow Weed's death is neither a social nor a moral, but only a journalistic event. He never aspired to hasten the dispatch of real intelligence, like James Gordon Bennett, nor to give his readers the indignation of a Horace Greeley, nor to single out scientific truth with political revolution, like Benjamin Franklin. He had the kind of success he sought—modesty, dramatic mystery, the appearance of being behind profound politics, the credit with groundlings of having raised great men, and his financial independence. Yet he was a "has been," and something of a Barum. He had been many indented kings, with an idea that he would make a great gap. I recognize the gap, but it is an act of somnolence, like that of having been visited by Old Parr, 150 years ago, or some similar oddity whose reminiscences were more abundant than reality. The man's name always suggested his nature to me—a rank weed, with an aristocratic botanical suffix. Let no young man of these candid times seek an example in the poor, old country Muttersack, who now is a piece of clay, remanded to his creator.

Weed was a Yankee of Connecticut stock, born, like Rip Van Winkle, under the shadow of the Catskills in 1797, two years before Simon Cameron's birth, and while Washington had just ceased to be president. Before he was ten years old he was well acquainted in the village of Canaan, and longed to see more of the world. His opportunity came through the kindness of Captain Jacobus Bogardus, who commanded the sloop Jefferson, and on this ship Thurlow Weed was taken as a cabin-boy for a voyage to the city of New York. To this city he introduced himself by tramping up Broadway with the trunk of one of the ship's passengers on his shoulders—a position even more humble than that of his printer, Philipps, Benjamin Franklin, when he entered Philadelphia thirty years before. Thurlow Weed was then nearly below Grand street, and contained about 75,000 people. Do With Clinton had been mayor, and was to be mayor again, and his fortune was then as great as that of the city of New York. Thurlow Weed was then nearly below Grand street, and contained about 75,000 people. Do With Clinton had been mayor, and was to be mayor again, and his fortune was then as great as that of the city of New York.

Carl Schurz thus epitomizes Weed: He came on the stage very soon after the disappearance from the politics of this state of the influence of families and of individuals who weighed through their names, and just as the problem of organizing and drilling parties under universal suffrage was first presenting itself to political managers. Thurlow Weed was rapidly passing away from the Hudson river, which had held it from the earliest times, and the pioneers were coming in from the western country, and meeting him. Thurlow Weed was being considered as good as anybody, and somewhat better. The need of conference, and persuasion, and reconciliation, and harmonizing of the various interests, and the management of large masses had set in, and Thurlow Weed was ready for it. About the same time, too, the nominating convention was held, and Thurlow Weed was ready for it. He was a field in which a newspaper editor enjoyed advantages which he does not now possess. Journalism was unknown, and the press was easy and free, and every word in it was supposed to emanate from the editor, who, indeed, literally talked through its columns to the public. Thurlow Weed was a man of a very small and isolated, and but little distinguished by news from the outer world, and dwell on its own affairs with an intensity of which we now know nothing. A regular freeze up last night.

The Black Crook at the opera house to-night.

The grand army boys rally around the W. H. Sargent post, this evening.

The attention of house keepers is called to the new advertisement of J. A. Denniston.

The new steam fire engine lately purchased by the village of Waukegan, has arrived in that place. It is one of the LaFrance's.

Miss Mattie McCullagh & Co. will have a special sale of collars to-morrow.

The Concordia society had a pleasant and social party at their hall last evening.

There was a good attendance and every one appeared to be happy. Tuckwesson's band furnished the music for the dance.

The Black Crook company arrived from Madison to-day, and are registered at the Myers house. It took several days to carry their immense amount of scenery from the depot to the opera house.

The evidence in the Osborn-Brown breach of warranty case, was closed in the municipal court last evening, and the arguments of the attorneys was put over until Monday. The testimony of some forty witnesses has been taken.

City Clerk Church has completed the special assessment and tax rolls for the grading of Terrace and South Bluff streets, and has placed the same in the hands of the city treasurer for collection, where parties interested can ascertain their indebtedness.

Mr. A. L. Brown, of the Chicago board of trade, to-day received the first private dispatch relating to the oil market, ever received in this city. The dispatch read: "Oil lower. Panicky. Stocks in New York cause a heavy feeling here." The dispatch was sent from Chicago. It is unnecessary to state that this news did not disturb our local markets to an alarming extent.

The young folks of the fourth ward had a pleasant and social time last evening at a surprise party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Griffin 40 Locust street. It being the eleventh anniversary of Miss Minnie M. Griffin, the young ladies under the leadership of Miss Blanche Hayward, assembled at the residence of Mr. John H. Nicholson and proceeded to the home of Miss Minnie, where all participated in one of the happiest surprise parties of the season. A bountiful table was spread, around which the young people gathered and partook of the good things before them. A number of presents were left for Miss Minnie, to remind her, that although young in years, she had already many warm and true friends among her acquaintances.

Charles Reed, a teamster in the employ of Mr. M. H. Curtis had the bone of his right leg crushed a few inches above the ankle joint, this morning. He was at work in the Chapin stone quarry, north of the city, when a large stone fell upon him with the above result. He was brought to the city, and the broken limb was attended to by Dr. Palmer. The unfortunate man formerly resided in Philadelphia, and has been in Janesville but a short time. Mr. Reed, up to the close of the season, had been employed by the western union telegraph company, in constructing and repairing lines, and being out of employment, he sought and obtained work of Mr. Curtis last Monday. He is unfortunate as he is without means, has no parents, and no friends here on whom he can draw for support during the time he will be laid up with the broken limb. He was taken to the county house this forenoon, where he will be cared for until he recovers.

Dr. J. H. Vivian, of Mineral Point, was in the city to-day. Dr. Vivian has been connected with state politics and state institutions for many years.

The wife and daughter of Conductor Andrew J. Wadsworth, who have been visiting the family of Dr. J. H. Warren, returned to their home in Milwaukee to-day.

Major S. S. Rockwood, editor of the Elk Horn Independent, came to this city last evening to visit his parents. The major is a polished and a vigorous writer, and during the recent campaign did excellent service for the republican party.

A Farewell Surprise Party.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Watson, in the second ward, was the scene of a very pleasant and social gathering last evening, it being a surprise party to Mrs. Will T. King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Watson, who expects to leave the city in a few days for her own home, in Webster City, Iowa. The party was gotten up by Mrs. Clint Wilcox and Mrs. Oris Sutherland, and was admirably carried out. Among those who were present were: Clem Jackson and wife, Clarence Jackson and wife, F. G. Stevens and wife, Oris Sutherland and wife, Clint Wilcox and wife, Mrs. Thomas King, C. E. Cummings and wife, Mrs. Scaroliff, Mrs. George Scaroliff, Mrs. C. C. McLean, Miss Minnie Doty, Miss Alice King, Miss Lula King, Miss Hattie Lippin, Miss May Patterson, Miss Kittie Williams, Mrs. J. A. Sutherland, Bob, Bostwick, S. D. Grubb, Walt N. Aris.

The evening was spent in social games, dancing and other amusements, during which the party sat down to a bountiful spread table. The party was a gay and happy one, and one which will long be remembered by Mrs. King for whom the surprise was planned.

The Pembler House.

Mr. A. B. Edwards and Mr. J. Snyder, have formed a copartnership as proprietors of the Pembler house in this city. Mr. Edwards has long been connected with the hotel now known as the Pembler house, and by his wide acquaintance has secured quite a handsome business. Mr. Snyder, who now becomes a proprietor with Mr. Edwards, managed the Snyder house at Clinton for some time. He is a practical hotel man, and will do much to increase the success of the Pembler house.

The Black Crook To-night.

Kiralfy's Black Crook will give the first performance at Myers' opera house this evening. It is needless to say that this will be one of the most pleasing and striking performances ever given in this city. In spectacular business, the performance will surpass the most gorgeous exhibition ever put on at the Janesville stage. Among the special scenes that will challenge admiration, are the prismatic fountain, the grand incantation scene, the March de Amazons, and the grand transformation scene—the utmost stretch of mechanical skill on the stage.

The performance is without a blemish, so that ladies as well as gentlemen can enjoy the wonders and the beauty of this marvelous exhibition.

The Black Crook combination showed at Madison last night, and this is what the Democrat of this morning says:

"The grandest of all spectacular dramas, the 'Black Crook,' was presented at the opera house, last evening, to a very large audience. Madison's stage never showed off so magnificently grand as last evening. The scenery carried by the company is new, and was produced by one of the best artists in the country. The costumes—new and tasty. In the grand ballet pas de deux, by the corps de ballet, there was nothing more impressive to the public taste than is found in 'Olyette' or many of the operas, so freely patronized by the ladies."

Captured Crooks.

Marshal Hogan succeeded this morning in arresting Thomas Houghlughan and Kate Conroy, at Ft. Atkinson, charged with robbing Mr. Henry Kastler on Wednesday night of a watch, chain and a twenty dollar gold piece. The particulars of which we give as related to us by Marshal Hogan. Houghlughan with a party of boys were having a time on West Milwaukee street, the marshal and officer Smith meeting them, several times warned them that they had better go home and behave themselves, or they would have to take them in charge. The boys disappeared from the streets at about half past ten on Wednesday night, the marshal thinking that they had gone home. It seems that after they had got out of the way of the marshal, they went into a saloon, where they met a man named Henry Kastler, who has been at work for Mr. Elijah Wixom, in the town of Fulton, and with whom Houghlughan was acquainted. Kastler had that day purchased a watch and chain from Mr. F. C. Cook, paying $28 for the same, and had $15 in bills, beside a $20 gold piece in his pockets. It appears that Houghlughan was aware of this, and laid his plans to get the money. For this purpose he called to his aid Kate Conroy, who, it is said, understands the ways of the world. Kastler was introduced to Kate, and the two took a walk together when near the residence of Dr. Andrew Palmer, in the 4th ward, having succeeded in relieving Kastler of his watch, chain and the $20 gold piece, she suddenly skipped away and disappeared. Kastler went to the Buel house and retired to his bed, a sadder, if not a wiser man. Friday morning he notified the marshal of what had happened, and, after hunting over the city yesterday, they were tracked to Jefferson. At Jefferson, Houghlughan, and another fellow chum, named Sullivan, got into a till tapping scrape, for which they had to pay a fine of $18, which wrecked the $20 gold piece. They then came back to the Fort when Marshal Hogan captured Houghlughan and Kate Conroy this morning, and brought them to this city. They were cared for at the Skavlon house. The stolen watch and chain were recovered, and have been identified. The parties will have a hearing before the municipal court.

Holiday Goods.

Not to be outdone by any other dealers in the northwest in the rich display of holiday goods, Messrs. Britton & Kimball are among the first to anticipate a lively business in the furniture trade during the next month, and have made arrangements to accommodate all customers with the best and cheapest articles in their line. They have an enormous stock, which embraces every article to be found in a first class furniture store. A visit to their establishment on West Milwaukee street, and their storeroom, in the Hyatt house block, will convince anyone of the truth of this statement. They have in their store on Milwaukee street as beautiful and substantial furniture as can be found anywhere, and that which would ornament any home. Chamber sets which they sell at prices ranging from $25 to $200; parlor sets from $45 to $150; patent rockers and easy chairs from $7 to $40; camp chairs $1.25 to $12; Bamboo chairs, from $4 to $12; lounges from $8 to $30; marble top tables from $6 to $25; side boards from $30 to $50; pier glasses from $25 to $55. Some of those articles are real beauties in design and finish. In their lower sales-room they have fitted up a table which is loaded with toy furniture for the little folks, and contains much that will please and cheer the young. They also have a large variety of book-cases, secretaries, desks, chairs in endless variety, and, in fact, everything, including patent bedsteads. We advise any of our readers who contemplate refurnishing their houses, or buying some substantial holiday present, to first visit the furniture store of Messrs. Britton & Kimball, knowing that they will find something that will fill the bill.

OBITUARY.

LEVI SQUIRES.

Again we are called upon to chronicle the departure from this life of one of Rock county's most respected citizens. Mr. Levi Squires, late of the town of Porter, died at his residence, in the village of Edgerton, Nov. 19, 1892.

He was born in Caldwell, Warren county, New York, June 22d, 1822. In 1839 he removed to Glens Falls, New York, where he resided till 1848, when with his family he came to Wisconsin, where he settled on a tract of wild land in the town of Porter. By his industry it became one of the most desirable homes in southern Wisconsin, where he resided until a few weeks previous to his death.

One of the pioneer settlers of the county he became widely known for his reliable business qualities and integrity of character.

In religion he was a Baptist, which faith he embraced in youth, and ever found hope and consolation in the bible, which was his companion to the end.

He leaves a wife, and two sons and one daughter, to mourn his loss, who were present during his last hours.

Put this in your Pipe.

"Frank P. Warner came into our store to purchase a sample bottle of Zepos for a friend, and stated that he (Mr. Warner) was afflicted with kidney and liver troubles for some years, and had paid $200 to $300 doctor's bills, and has now been completely cured by the use of two large bottles and one sample bottle of Zepos. He was so bad at one time that he lost 37 pounds of flesh, but after using Zepos claims that he is a sound man, and now weighs 145 pounds. He was loud in his praise, and readily consented to allow us to use his name for reference.

We could speak very many such, but have not the time nor space. Zepos is not a cure-all, but acts directly upon the liver, kidneys, and stomach, correcting the digestion, giving activity to the liver and health to the urine. This corrects the whole system and the blood becomes pure. Sold by Prentice & Evenson.

The Horticultural Society.

The annual meeting of the Janesville horticultural society will be held at the city hall to-morrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock. This meeting will be of general interest to all parties interested in horticulture in Rock county and it is hoped that there will be a good attendance. Besides the prominent horticulturists from Wisconsin who have notified the committee of their intention to be present, are several gentlemen from Illinois, who have been in correspondence with the secretary, and are expected here to address the meeting. The executive committee of the Janesville society have sent the following circular to all the horticulturists in Rock county, and the attendance will undoubtedly be large:

JANESVILLE, Wis., Nov. 20, 1892.

You are cordially invited to be present at a meeting to be held on Saturday next, (Nov. 25th), at two o'clock p. m., at the common council rooms, for the purpose of organizing a county horticultural society.

An interesting time is expected, and will be of interest to everyone interested in fruit or flowers.

G. P. Peffer, of Pewaukee one of the leading horticulturists of the state, will be present and give a short address on the "Causes of the failure of grapes, this last season." He will also illustrate the best method of pruning vines.

A. M. Case, secretary of the state horticultural society, will also be present. This being the annual meeting of the Janesville horticultural society, the election of officers will take place at the same time.

Rose Eytinge in the Princess of Paris.

There was a very fair sized audience at Myers opera house last night to hear Rose Eytinge in that French society drama "The Princess of Paris." The play itself is of little consequence, the actors themselves, one and all, being much above the possibilities of the drama. It is one of those cheerless, indifferent plays in which even so accomplished an artist as Miss Rose Eytinge, appears to more or less at a disadvantage. Not one of the brightest stars can always make up for the dominant defects in a drama, and this may justly apply to Rose Eytinge and "The Princess of Paris." There were no doubt some disappointed last night, because the play did not draw out the powerful emotional acting of Eytinge for which she is so famous. But enough could be seen in "even so tame a piece as "The Princess of Paris," to prove to them that she is an actress of almost consummate skill. In that particular line of acting—the sensational and emotional—she stands well high incomparable, but there are but few plays thoroughly suited to her ability. "Camille" and "Leda Astray," in which her greatest power has been displayed and her most brilliant conquests made, have probably become too old for cities like Janesville, and the next best thing is "The Princess of Paris." As we have already said, this drama does not bring out all the capabilities of Rose Eytinge, nevertheless she did some splendid acting last night as Lionette de Courville, especially in the third act in which takes place the self-accusation and the shower of gold.

The support was good throughout—very good—each member of the company being an excellent artist. The audience was a very intelligent one in its composition, but was not enthusiastic.

Circuit Court.

The divorce case of Miles against Miles was heard in the circuit court this morning. The plaintiff, Mrs. Mary Miles, is a resident of Beloit. She testified that she was married to the defendant in 1848, and that during a large number of years thereafter, he failed to provide her with food and clothing, until finally they found it necessary to separate. For the last six years they have lived apart, under an agreement of mutual separation. The plaintiff made a very creditable appearance as a witness, detailing sufficient of her troubles with her husband to show that the lines of her married life had not fallen into pleasant places. His Honor, Judge Bennett, granted her a judgment of divorce from the bonds of matrimony, and assigned to her the custody of a minor child. Messrs. Winous & Pethers represented the plaintiff. The defendant failed to put in an appearance.

THE LARGEST AND FINEST ASSORTMENT of Hair goods ever brought to Janesville, can be seen at Mrs. William Sattlers Opera house block.
